PRAYER FOCUS

There are millions of people trafficked and living in slavery today. Countless child soldiers are forced to shoot and kill in grown men's armies. Of those millions, it's estimated that only one percent will be rescued. Often it's assumed that slavery only takes place in foreign countries, when in reality it's also occurring close to our own backyard. The fight against modern-day slavery and trafficking must begin with prayer.

PRAYER POINTS

- For liberation and justice to be brought to the victims.
- For physical and emotional healing for the victims.
- That God would give peace and remove the bad memories many victims deal with.
- That traffickers would realize the sin they are in, repent, and turn from it.
- That government leaders and local authorities would have wisdom and intuition to find where the trafficking occurs so they can stop it.
- That these same authorities would not give in to bribes or pressure to conceal the matters.
- For awareness to grow within the community.
- That those who care for trafficked victims would have patience and love for each person and would not grow apathetic.
- That organizations and groups against trafficking would find funding and favor to fight these crimes.
